"Health Care" ?

Pearl Harbor did not "wake up" the American people. Pearl Harbor woke up the US Navy and Army, who in turn woke up the people's representatives, who in turn woke up the people.

A nation comes up around its Army, and by implication also Navy and Air Force. No Army, no nation, no nation, no civilization.

Documents don't mean a damn thing unless an Army makes them stick. Habits of mind and structures of government have more power than documents, but even they don't mean a damn thing unless an Army makes them stick. The wishes of the people are never unitary and even if they were they don't mean a damn thing unless an Army reflects them accurately and makes them stick. The only reality more powerful than the Army is the land itself, the unity of its physical, spiritual and psychic being as a whole, which is also, therefore and decisively, the basis of the nation, the Army at its core, and the civilization they produce.

No Army, no nation, no nation, no civilization, only alternating polar current of tyranny and anarchy.

This one, therefore, has been decided on The Plain of West Point already or soon will be, redeem the Constitution or not. If not, this is no civilization, merely alternating tyranny and anarchy with the former now rampant -- and the latter sure to follow soon enough.

Voting won't mean a damn thing. Nothing that can be done in 02NOV10 can have the slightest effect on the engine of tyranny now in gear and racing forward to fulfill its nature. We just saw proof that nothing Constitutional or statutory (e.g., elections) can resist much less overcome that engine. Their representatives, Republican as well as "Democrat," have put the people to sleep and the Army is somnolent from appeasement -- e.g., Fort Hood and thousands of existing conditions exactly like it, inside the Army, awaiting the same result.

This one is in the hands of West Point and West Pointers. They always have and always will hold the destiny of the nation in their hands.

No one else, save earth alone, has power to redeem this situation.

The whole grim, grizzly, gruesome thing is a drama produced, directed by and starring the Holy Spirit, yes, but not all its actors are reading their lines, at least not yet.

OK, I'm quiet, or, as his friend Le Bret says to Cyrano, "Yes, tell this to all the world, and then to me say, very softly, that, she loves you not."
