

Theological Geography

Dunfermline Abbey is a Benedictine abbey in Dunfermline, Fife, Scotland. The abbey was founded in 1128 by King David I of Scotland, but the monastic establishment was based on an earlier foundation dating back to the reign of King Máel Coluim mac Donnchada (i.e. "Malcolm III" or "Malcolm Canmore", r. 1058-93).

The Rev. David R. Graham
July 18, 2009

All the fuss today is about this Personality, simply, literally, only:

[Click Here To Play The Movie
Chaitanya Jyothi Museum Opening, 2000](#)

Comments

All the fuss is about a Who, just as always when there is a fuss.

But today the fuss covers the globe because this Who makes the globe and runs it and the fussers do not like that. They want to make and run it themselves.

Fat chance! Growl you may, fussers, but march you must.

Disregard the six-lobed graphic at the very end. It is a phony, illegitimate, tendentious, made by some egotistical Americans in Los Angeles in the late 1970s and not authorized at Puttaparthi. Possibly the same Americans made this video, but their video work is often good, as here. The original and legitimate Symbol, drawn extempore in 1972 on the back of an envelope, is by Swami and five-lobed, as reproduced and expounded upon here. The number of lobes is decisive for the meaning of the Symbol. Five is the right meaning, six is wrong.

